Music and Cooking Classes

Introduction:

During the months of November 2021 and April 2022, a series of music and cooking classes were conducted in two different locations, P13 and I-21 respectively. These classes were organised to provide participants with an opportunity to learn and enhance their skills in music and culinary arts. This report aims to summarise the activities, achievements, and feedback from the participants of these classes.

Music:

The music classes conducted in P13 spanned over 30 hours, taking place from November 8th to November 20th, 2021. Led by experienced instructors, the classes covered various aspects of music theory, practical vocal and ensemble performance. The curriculum included:

1. Fundamentals of Music Theory: Participants were introduced to basic concepts such as notation, rhythm, harmony, and melody.
2. Ensemble Practice: Group sessions were organised to allow students to collaborate, rehearse, and perform together, fostering teamwork and musical cohesion.

The classes received positive feedback from participants who appreciated the structured curriculum, knowledgeable instructors, and interactive learning environment. Many students reported significant improvement in their musical abilities and expressed a desire for more such opportunities in the future.

Cooking:

In April 2022, a series of cooking classes were held in I 21, spanning 30 hours from April 18th to April 28th. Led by seasoned chefs, the classes aimed to teach participants the art and science of cooking various cuisines. The syllabus covered:

Basic Culinary Techniques: Participants were taught fundamental cooking techniques such as chopping, sautéing, baking, and grilling, laying a strong foundation for culinary skills.

Hands-on Cooking Sessions: Practical cooking sessions allowed students to apply theoretical knowledge, prepare dishes under supervision, and receive personalised feedback from instructors.

The cooking classes were well-received by participants, who commended the instructors for their expertise, patience, and engaging teaching methods. Many participants expressed satisfaction with their newfound cooking skills and confidence in experimenting with recipes at home.
