AMAZING FACTS

- A. Animals are Digitigrades, i.e., they walk on their digits or toes.
- B. Birds, cats, dogs etc are examples. The bones which correspond to the human ankles are set much higher in their limb than in a human and hence what most people think is knees are actually their ankles.
- C. Humans, bears, Raccoons, etc are Plantigrades, i.e., they walk on the flats of their feet. Unguligrades species walk on their tiptoes, often on hooves. Deer and horses are examples.

FAREWELL : A GATEWAY TO NEW BEGINNING

As the academic year draws to a close, we stand on the threshold of farewells and new beginnings. These moments evoke mixed emotions, reminding us of the constant cycle of change in our lives. Embracing change, bidding farewell, and welcoming the opportunities ahead are key aspects of this transition.

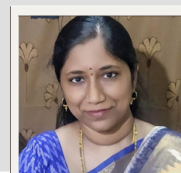

Farewell marks a transition from one chapter to another, presenting us with fresh environments, challenges, and possibilities. It is an opportunity to grow, adapt, and learn from the experiences that await us. Cherishing memories is essential as we bid farewell, as they serve as reminders of the bonds we've formed and the experiences that have shaped us.

Lessons learned throughout our time together extend beyond textbooks and exams. Challenges faced, triumphs celebrated, and support offered have imparted invaluable life lessons. As we embark on new beginnings, let us carry these lessons, cultivating resilience and face the unknown.

Expressing gratitude to one another is vital as we part ways. Each student has contributed to our collective growth, and I am grateful for the opportunity to be a part of your journey. Farewell signifies the gateway to new adventures, where we welcome opportunities, forge connections, and pursue passions with determination.

As we bid farewell to this chapter, let us embrace the new beginnings that await us. Treasuring memories, carrying learned lessons, and expressing gratitude from the foundation for a fulfilling journey ahead. Farewell, dear students, and may your future be filled with joy, success, and endless opportunities.

DEJA-VU PART 1

An aspiring young filmmaker Rohith finds his chance to narrate a short film script to a producer. They met at a branch of Cafe Coffee Day. Rohith decides to make the best use of this opportunity and begins to narrate his story.

"On a dark, gloomy night, illuminated only by the fog light of his bike, a young man named Kiran found himself lost in the middle of nowhere. While trying to find his way home, he found himself in a completely deserted place. He drove until he entered a narrow road and suddenly his bike's fog light malfunctioned, plunging him into darkness. He panicked and ended up in a place where there were no roads. All of a sudden the fog light of his bike lit only to realise that he was in a graveyard.

Kiran started to shiver and could hear his own heartbeat. Out of immense fear, he decided to leave the place. He started his bike and rushed onto the road hoping to get out of the place. Suddenly an old lady holding a stick, face covered with long hair and with a hunched posture passed in front of his bike. Overwhelmed with terror, he took a sharp right turn that led him to tumble off his bike..."

EVER EVERY TIME !

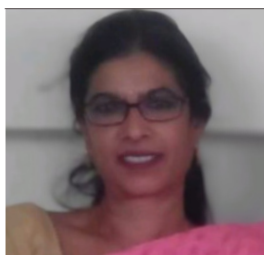

Every time I see your face,
I feel like your charm pins my soul.
Every time I see you talk,
I feel like your voice pins my ears.
Every time I see you happy,
I feel like your smile pins my shine.
Every time I see you cry,
I feel like your tears pin my heart.
Every time I see you alone,
I feel like your soul pins my grave.

SUNSHINE!

Do you remember how we sneaked down those stairs our sticky fingers interlaced slowly stepping out on chubby tippy toes and quickly running barefoot into the open
I forgot to bring the chocolates but you left behind the paper boats too our hearts pounding with utter glee as we made it to the bottom of those stone stairs without getting caught free of adult eyes, we ran into the garden picking up sticks to draw circles on the riverbanks you kept throwing stones into the water and I buried my tiny feet in mud and slime the sun was shining and the crows cawed noisily
I went back today to savour those childhood memories
the house was broken and abandoned the stone stairway was lonely and in disarray nature had lovingly claimed our pathway
I looked back at the arch wistfully where once we held hands and looked up to the sunshine by the river sands!

PANTHEON OF GREAT INDIANS - 1

Dear Readers,

Welcome to the Second edition of the 'IN'SIGHT English Magazine. From this month onwards I will be presenting to you, through my articles the great Indians from the annals of Indian History- ancient, medieval and modern, whose contribution to the making of India is incomparable! I hope this will motivate the students to be proud of India, one of the richest countries in the world in terms of history, culture and extraordinary men and women who flourished in this great nation of ours

MANU

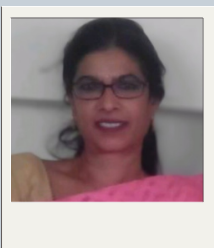

History of man on earth has been a subject of fascination for archeologist, historians and scientists. Have you ever wondered who the first human on earth according to Hindu mythology? Who started the human race? It's MANU. I bring you the story of Manu.

Long time ago, so far away that word cannot describe the time or the distance, there lived a wise and holy man named Manu in a forest beside a river. As was his ritual every day, he went to the riverbank to pay obeisance to the sun god; a little fish called out to him and said. "O, great sage! Please help me from the big fish, when time comes I shall reward you" Manu took pity on the fish and placed in a small bowl. Soon it out grew the small bowl, and Manu transferred it to a small pond. Later it became too big for the pond, Manu transferred it to a river. After some time the fish came up to Manu and said to him and stated that it could no longer stay in the river due to its huge size. The fish requested "Could you guide me to the ocean? By this time Manu realized it was Lord Vishnu and he bowed his head and paid his respect to the great fish. Lord Vishnu warned him of a great flood and instructed him to built huge boat and to take the seeds of all plants and living creatures of both gender.

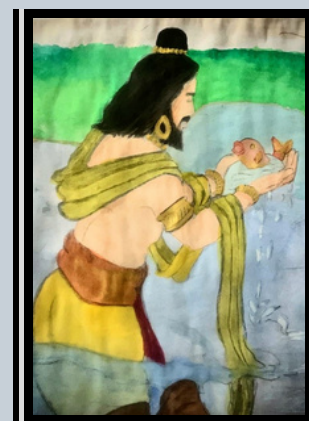

The day of reckoning arrived and the heavens opened up and it rained continuously for months flooding the earth with water. Lord Vishnu in the form of Fish arrived with a huge bright horn on its head. Manu tied the end of the rope to the horn of the fish and steered to the foothills of Mount Malaya. Manu was instructed to plant the seeds and grow trees, create humans, demons, birds and animals. Lord Vishnu blessed him with power, wisdom and creativity. This is how Manu became the first human and birth giver of mankind.

Manu is also the regarded as the FIRST LAW MAKER, and author of 'MANUSMRITI'. He is also the originator of the Caste/Varna system in India.

Foot Note: The story of Manu and the great flood bears a striking similarity to the story of Noah's Ark from the book of genesis in the Old Testament. There are also references to Great Deluge in many ancient civilizations like the Sumerian Tablets, Greek Mythology, Gun Yu myth of China. Great deluge has entered into the myth of a wide range of cultures extending back to the Bronze age and Neolithic Prehistory.

PERCY JACKSON AND THE OLYMPIANS

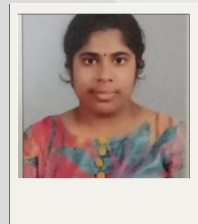

Heya people!!!!!! As promised I am back with the review of the second book from the series, Percy Jackson and the Olympians!!!!

This book is the sequel to the book I reviewed in the previous edition, Percy Jackson and The Lightning Thief. This book is set after a year The Lightning Thief takes place. We are introduced to a new character Tyson, whom Percy meets at his new school (as he has been removed from his old school..... AGAIN!!!!!!). Percy has had a peaceful year up until now. He finally thinks that he will survive the entire school year without any monsters coming to attack him but alas things don't go well as planned. On the last day of his new school, Fates(some old ladies who get to decide what happens in one's life....like seriously let people live their own lives ladies!!!) decide to play a joke on him. This time, the book focuses on the trio of Percy, Annabeth and Tyson who are sent on a quest by Hermes (the god of thieves, athletes, commerce, speed, wit and so many more..... Seriously Gods how do you expect one person..oop God to handle so many things?) to save Grover and the poisoned pine tree securing the border of the camp. They have to cross the Sea of Monsters (known as Bermuda Triangle to us common folk) to find Polyphemus's (who is a dirty old cyclops) island and get the Golden Fleece to heal the tree. The quest is filled with dangers but the trio is well aided by Clarisse La Rue, a daughter of Ares.

My favourite character in this book is Clarisse. She is depicted as an obstinate girl in the beginning who cares about no one but herself, but as the book progresses, we find out that she can go to any lengths to save her home, Camp Half-Blood. The book is interesting, filled with its own twists and turns as usual but lacks the required pace. I'll give the book a 4 out of 5 points, cutting a point for its slow pace.

PS. The ending of this book..... Shocking as usual

PPS. You can borrow this book from the LFDC library.

THE SUMMER NOSTALGIA

As the weather heats up and the days grow longer, it's hard not to feel a sense of nostalgia for the past summers. Whether it's the sound of an ice cream vehicle or the kids playing cricket on the roads, certain sights, sounds, and smells can instantly transport us back to our childhood.

The last exam of the academic year which happens to be in summer is the happiest day for the school kids as after completing the exams they can go back home happily move away from the books and stick to the T.V. watching their favourite cartoon.

For many people, summer is a time of freedom and adventure. With no school to worry about, kids can explore their surroundings and create memories that will last a lifetime. So as the summer approaches, take a moment to reflect on your own memories and experiences. What sights, sounds, and smells transport you back to your childhood? What moments do you cherish the most?

The beauty of summer nostalgia is that it reminds us of childhood's joys while encouraging us to make the most of the present.
