POLITICAL SCIENCE EXHIBITION

NAME OF THE ACTIVITY: POLITICAL SCIENCE EXHIBITION

DATE: 30-01-2019

VENUE: KARUNYA COURT

NO. OF PARTICIPANTS: 30

RESOURCE PERSON: DR. RASHMI BATCHU, CENTRAL UNIVERSITY

The Department of Political Science organized a Guest Lecture on the significance of History in Political Science. There is no denying the fact that there is a dependence of the two disciplines on one another. Both state and political institutions are the product of history. This was clearly stressed by the guest speaker Dr Rashmi Batchu.

She pointed out that History furnishes sufficient material for comparison and induction, enabling us to build an ideal political structure. She stated that History is a study of various facts of human life and is closely linked with history. History and political science when studied in unison are complementary to one another. When studied apart, they are incomplete. To best explain by example: history makes politics and politics makes history. One surely exists without another, but they're not understood and appreciated unless they are studied together.
